

EHS Employee Training

People are different, so is the conduct of training.

In Ecovane, doing the right job will be the fundamental principle for conduct and behaviour; we believe it should be also the same for EHS performance everywhere.

There are a thousand reasons that a company may need EHS training, be it for the new employee EHS briefing and tutoring, or for on-job safety education of new process or practice, or as part of an EHS improvement or correction campaign, EHS training is always, if not the most, an important step for the holistic EHS management and improvement. And the biggest difference of EHS training from the other ones is that from CEO to junior apprentices, everyone in the company needs EHS training, since EHS is everybody's right of choice.

We don't like talking big empty words, not in an EHS training course; we choose to do the right job as we believe that both our trainees' time and their knowledge on EHS should not to be misled.
